About me

I consider myself as an ambitious and creative person, looking forward to expanding my learning.

I am specialized in UX/UI, creating data-driven digital products. I am experienced in researching to find the best solution for a given case scenario considering all the possible constraints.

From my perspective, IT professionals should be in constant evolution. Which is why I decided to enhance my profile by acquiring development skills in order to understand and participate in most of the process involved in creating a digital product.
